- The survey was conducted through Computer Assisted Telephonic Interviews (CATI). These interviews were conducted by a team of trained professionals with an attempt to closely match the demographic spread of Pakistan.
- A phone panel comprised of randomly selected 425,820 active mobile phone users was used as sampling frame to draw sample of adult residents of Pakistan. This Phone Panel was made through Face-to-Face data collection across all Provinces of Pakistan
- In the first stage of sampling, Primary Sampling Units (PSUs) were allocated proportionally based on each province's share of the national population. In the second stage, mobile phone numbers were stratified by province. Within each province, respondents were selected using Systematic Sampling with a Random Start (SSRS) to ensure balanced geographic and demographic representation.
- The information in this report has been compiled in accordance with international standards for market and social research methodologies.
- Figures in charts and tables may not sum to 100 percent due to rounding error.
